History
Wattle Park, named after Australia’s proposed national floral emblem, the Golden Wattle, officially opened in 1917. It is the only known remaining Australian example of a pleasure park initially established, owned and operated by a transport authority with the dual purpose of promoting transport services and providing a recreational facility at the terminus of its lines for the public.

Wattle Park Chalet
The Wattle Park Chalet was initially constructed in 1928 to provide meals and entertainment for an increasing number of visitors to the park. Built primarily using discarded materials, such as bricks and slate paving from redundant cable tram engine houses, the Chalet largely remains in its original form, offering all the historic charm and splendour of the early 1900s.

The Chalet is set among beautiful gardens and is a popular venue for receptions, functions and meetings. For bookings and enquiries call Provincial Events at Wattle Park Chalet on 9808 0122.

Melbourne Transit Band
The Melbourne Transit Band has been a feature of Wattle Park since 1941. It provides free entertainment to the public in the rostrum near the picnic area, one Sunday a month from October to April. For dates and information call 13 1963.

Lone Pine
Overlooking the oval is the Lone Pine. The Lone Pine was planted in 1933 in remembrance of fallen comrades of the 24th Battalion. One of only four plantings in Victoria, the seed was taken from the original Lone Pine, a solitary tree on the battlefields of the Gallipoli Peninsula, Turkey, during the First World War in 1915.

Trams and tram shelters
The heritage W-Class trams near the picnic area represent a critical stage in Melbourne’s tramway history. Built between 1923 and 1956, the family of W-Class trams were designed due to the conversion of cable tram lines to electric and the planned expansion of the Melbourne system. Today the trams can be used as picnic shelters and play areas.

The historical stone waiting shelters, which originally served the tramway, form entrances for pedestrian access to the park on Riversdale Road and on the corner of Warrigal and Riversdale Road.

Plants and animals
Wattle Park is a haven among the urban surrounds for plants and wildlife. The eucalypts, pines, elms and other trees are home to a variety of wildlife including birds, bats and possums. The park is also a popular breeding area for Tawny Frogmouths.

After rainfall, on the eastern side of the park, the Damper Creek runs freely into the filtration ponds where the distinct sounds of the Southern Bullfrog, or Pobblebonk, can often be heard.

From late winter through spring the eastern slope comes alive with splashes of colour, as the wildflowers bloom. Native orchids, lilies and grasses are common in the area.

The conservation zone in the eastern half of the park plays an important role in protecting the indigenous flora and fauna.
